Course Modules

Module 1: The Foundation of Labor Relations

- Understanding the legal framework: NLRA, state, and local labor laws.
- Interpreting the Collective Bargaining Agreement (CBA) and its key provisions.
- Distinguishing between employee relations and labor relations.
- Roles and responsibilities of management and the union.
- Case Study: The Automotive Plant and the Seniority Clause - A new manager fails to follow seniority rules outlined in the CBA for overtime allocation, leading to a filed grievance. We will analyze the contract language, the manager's error, and the correct procedure.

Module 2: Effective Communication and Relationship Building

- Strategies for building positive, trust-based relationships with union officials.
- Communicating effectively with unionized employees.
- Conducting productive meetings with union representatives.
- Navigating the "Weingarten Rights" and the role of a union steward.
- Case Study: The Tech Company's Transparency Initiative - Management at a tech firm decides to proactively share operational changes with the union, leading to a collaborative problem-solving approach instead of a confrontational one. This highlights the benefits of open communication and proactive engagement.

Module 3: Grievance and Conflict Management

- The anatomy of a grievance: from filing to arbitration.
- Conducting a thorough and fair grievance investigation.
- Writing a clear and defensible grievance response.
- Developing skills in conflict resolution and mediation.
- Case Study: The Manufacturing Plant's Absenteeism Dispute - An employee files a grievance over a disciplinary action for absenteeism. We'll examine the documentation, the "just cause" standard, and how a well-documented process can support a management decision.

Module 4: Performance Management in a Unionized Setting

- Setting clear expectations and performance standards.
- Providing constructive feedback and coaching without violating the CBA.
- Documenting performance issues and creating performance improvement plans (PIPs).
- Understanding the "just cause" standard for discipline and termination.
- Case Study: The Hospital's Performance Improvement Plan - A nurse's performance is consistently poor. We will review the process of creating a PIP, involving the union steward, and ensuring all actions align with the union contract to avoid a successful grievance.

Module 5: Disciplinary Actions and Investigations

- Principles of progressive discipline and consistent application.
- Conducting fair and impartial workplace investigations.

- Handling challenging situations like insubordination or misconduct.
- Ensuring due process and legal compliance during disciplinary interviews.
- Case Study: The Retail Warehouse's Investigation - An employee is accused of theft. We will walk through the investigation steps, including interviewing witnesses, gathering evidence, and ensuring the employee's rights are protected, ultimately leading to a legally sound decision.

Module 6: Navigating Union Negotiations and Strikes

- Understanding the collective bargaining process and negotiation strategies.
- The role of managers and supervisors during negotiations.
- Legal and operational considerations during strikes or work stoppages.
- Maintaining business continuity in a labor dispute.
- Case Study: The School District's Impasse - Negotiations between a school district and its teachers' union reach an impasse. We will analyze the communication and strategies used to prevent a strike and ultimately reach a new agreement.

Module 7: Leading Change and Fostering a Collaborative Culture

- Implementing organizational changes within the constraints of a CBA.
- Consulting with the union on changes that affect employees.
- Strategies for gaining employee and union buy-in for new initiatives.
- Promoting a culture of joint problem-solving and mutual respect.
- Case Study: The Utility Company's Tech Upgrade - A utility company introduces new technology that changes job functions. We will examine how they collaborated with the union to retrain employees and manage the transition smoothly, avoiding resistance.

Module 8: The Legal Landscape and Emerging Trends

- Updates on recent labor law decisions and their impact.
- Addressing issues of harassment and discrimination in a unionized workplace.
- Understanding the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) and its role.
- Future trends in labor relations and the gig economy.
- Case Study: The Gig Economy and Union Organizing - We will explore a real-world example of how gig workers successfully organized to gain union representation, highlighting the evolving nature of labor relations.
