Course Introduction

Climate change is one of the most urgent global challenges, requiring not only scientific solutions but also effective communication, public engagement, and behavior change strategies. Climate Change Communication Training Course is designed to equip participants with advanced climate literacy, science communication skills, digital advocacy tools, and strategic storytelling techniques to translate complex environmental data into clear, compelling, and actionable messages. The course integrates climate journalism, risk communication, sustainability narratives, and behavioral science insights to empower participants to influence policy, communities, and corporate action.

In an era dominated by misinformation, greenwashing, and digital information overload, communicators must master climate storytelling, social media engagement, stakeholder mapping, and data-driven advocacy. This training provides practical, real-world applications through case studies from global climate campaigns, disaster risk communication, and environmental activism. Participants will gain hands-on experience in designing impactful climate campaigns, mobilizing communities, and leveraging AI-driven communication tools to accelerate climate awareness and sustainability transformation.
