

Crisis Management for Trade Unions Training Course

Professional Development Training Course Outline

Category	Trade Unions	Duration	5 Days
Base Fee	$1,500 USD	Delivery Mode	Online / On-site Hybrid

Course Introduction

In today’s volatile industrial relations landscape, trade unions face increasing pressure from rapid globalization, digital activism, labor disputes, misinformation, and political interference. Effective crisis management has become a critical competency for union leaders, shop stewards, and labor negotiators. Whether dealing with strikes, leadership disputes, reputational damage, legal challenges, or member unrest, unions must respond with speed, strategy, and coordinated communication. Crisis Management for Trade Unions Training Course equips participants with advanced crisis communication strategies, risk mitigation frameworks, and industrial relations resilience tools to protect union credibility and member trust.

This program focuses on building strong organizational resilience, stakeholder engagement, conflict de-escalation, and media management capabilities within trade unions. Participants will learn how to anticipate crises, respond decisively, and recover effectively while maintaining solidarity and bargaining power. With a strong emphasis on real-world scenarios, digital-era union challenges, and case-based learning, the course strengthens leadership capacity in handling labor crises, reputational threats, cyber misinformation, and collective bargaining breakdowns in a structured and professional manner.
