Course Introduction

Social Protection Systems and Labour Rights form the backbone of inclusive, equitable, and resilient societies in the modern global economy. In an era defined by rapid digital transformation, climate-induced vulnerabilities, informal labour expansion, and shifting global employment patterns, strengthening social protection floors, decent work frameworks, and labour rights enforcement mechanisms has become a strategic development priority. Social Protection Systems and Labour Rights Training Course equips participants with advanced knowledge of rights-based social policy design, universal social protection systems, labour market governance, and ILO-aligned standards to address poverty, inequality, and workforce precarity.

The course integrates contemporary global trends such as gig economy regulation, social security portability, gender-responsive labour policies, and adaptive social protection systems. It emphasizes practical implementation, policy analysis, and institutional strengthening to support governments, NGOs, development agencies, and private sector actors in building sustainable systems that protect workers across formal and informal economies. Participants will gain actionable skills in policy design, monitoring and evaluation, and rights-based advocacy aligned with Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs 1, 8, and 10).
