Course Introduction

The modern industrial landscape is undergoing a radical shift driven by the Fourth Industrial Revolution and the rapid integration of Artificial Intelligence in the workplace. As algorithmic management becomes a standard in various sectors, trade unions face the dual challenge of protecting worker autonomy and addressing the psychological hazards of digital surveillance. Trade Union Administration and Management Training Course provides a comprehensive framework for Trade Union Administration and Management, equipping leaders with the skills to navigate the "labour constitution" and advocate for collective rights in an increasingly individualised employment environment

Effective union administration in 2026 requires more than traditional negotiation skills; it demands a sophisticated understanding of digital activism, data privacy, and transnational worker solidarity. By embracing transformational leadership and digital organising strategies, unions can revitalize their membership and remain relevant to a younger, tech-reliant workforce. This program bridges the gap between traditional collective bargaining and the modern requirements of human-centered AI deployment and sustainable labour practices.
