Course Introduction

In today's increasingly interconnected world, educators are called to prepare students for global citizenship by embedding global competencies into the curriculum. Training Course on Integrating Global Competencies into Curriculum empowers teachers, curriculum developers, and school leaders to incorporate critical global skills—such as intercultural awareness, digital literacy, sustainability, and global collaboration—across all subject areas. With an emphasis on project-based learning, 21st-century skills, and inclusive practices, participants will gain strategies and tools to internationalize their curricula while aligning with educational standards and learner diversity.

The course is grounded in global education trends and UNESCO frameworks, equipping participants with practical knowledge to foster critical thinking, cross-cultural communication, empathy, and civic responsibility. By focusing on real-world applications, this training supports the development of future-ready learners who are equipped to address global challenges and thrive in multicultural environments. Participants will leave with actionable plans and a toolkit of digital resources, case studies, and curriculum templates tailored for global integration.
